Summer School in Psychological Economics and Economic Psychology

June 22nd - July 2nd, 2009
Monte Bondone, Trento (Italy)

The summer school is simultaneously a school, teaching contemporary theories and methods, and a workshop, wherein participants, both faculty and students, develop research and ideas to advance this frontier. The school is a call to the community of present and future researchers interested in pursuing this objective.

The general aim of the Summer School is to provide participants with an interdisciplinary and open-minded view of the study of economic decision-making.

Directors of the School

Luigi Mittone, University of Trento

Paul Webley, SOAS, University of London

Guest Speakers

Giorgio Coricelli, CNRS, Université Lyon I and CIMEC, University of Trento

Simon Gächter, CeDEX, University of Nottingham

Werner Güth, Max Planck Institute of Economics, Jena

William T. Harbaugh, University of Oregon, Eugene

Paul Slovic, Decision Research, Eugene, Oregon
